Courtney Campbell, DVM, famed veterinarian and media personality, will be taking home Global Pet Expo's annual Excellence in Journalism and Outstanding Contributions to the Pet Industry Award. He'll accept the award on Feb. 27 in Orlando, Fla., during The Purina Media Reception at Global Pet Expo, a trade show that is presented by the American

Pet Products Association (APPA) and Pet Industry Distributors Association (PIDA).

Dr. Campbell is a featured guest on programs such as "Rachael Ray," "Live with Kelly and Ryan," "The Doctors," "Home and Family," "The Real," "The Boris and Nicole Show" and Pet Collective's "Ask a Vet/Hot Vet," where he addresses proper pet care for maintaining a pet's health.

He also served as the veterinary medical correspondent for "Top 30," a contemporary news program. He now hosts his own veterinary news show called “Vet Candy Watch,” which debuted on iTunes and Facebook Watch. Additionally, Campbell hosts “Anything Pawsible,” a podcast on Pet Life Radio, where he highlights the “depth and beauty” of the human-animal bond.

Campbell currently practices at VetSurg, a specialty surgery practice in Ventura, Calif., where he focuses on orthopedic, soft tissue and minimally invasive surgery.

“It’s clear that Dr. Campbell is dedicated to using his platform to celebrate and promote the joy of having pets as part of our families,” said Steve King, CEO of APPA. “He actively engages with the public, educating them about the care of animals and responsible pet ownership. We are thrilled to have Dr. Campbell as our 2020 honoree.”

Global Pet Expo’s annual Excellence in Journalism and Outstanding Contributions to the Pet Industry Award recognizes individuals in the media who “have the power to influence millions of people and use this to positively promote the joys and benefits of pet ownership.”
